Summary: Sadness had stepped back to watch her girlfriend do what she does best. Drabble. Post Movie.

This Moment

She watched as Joy led through this with less controlling confidence and more equal support and control with everyone.

For a moment, Sadness was away from the crowd though that would change soon enough once she walked over to stand beside her girlfriend.

Watching Joy when she was in her element was and had always been amazing.

Sadness went to stand beside the other female and felt those sweet fingers twine with hers as she stood with her and watched the multicolored balls of emotional memory be created.

She felt a small smile turn her lips up from where she leaned against Joy.

Things couldn't be better now; all of their struggles and obstacles had led to this splendid moment after all.
